Richman Hurls Woman Into Water After She Is Saved From Flames; Gas Causes Blast.

GREENPORT, N. Y., July 26.—(AP)—Harry Richman, Broadway actor and night club owner; his chauffeur, a ship captain, a newspaper columnist and two Ziegfeld Follies chorus girls were burned severely today when an explosion sank Richman's yacht at its dock here.

The most seriously injured was Helen Walsh, one of the actresses. As fire tore through the cabin of the craft, she was buried under a flaming mattress. Richman grabbed her and jumped with her into the water. Both were later helped to shore. Physicians said her condition was serious but not critical.

The other victims were:

Mark Hellinger, newspaper columnist, burned severely on the hands, legs and chest.

Virginia Biddle, Ziegfeld Follies chorus girl, severe burns on the feet and ankles.

Robert Levy, Richman's chauffeur, superficial burns.

Samuel White, ship's captain, burns on the face, chest and head.

Mrs. Mark Hellinger, known on the Follies stage as Gladys Glad, was the only member of the party uninjured, but she was taken to a hospital suffering from hysteria.

Hellinger and Richman said gas fumes in the cabin in which the group were sitting exploded and that fire sprang up so quickly all were burned before they could flee.

The 36-foot sea-going cruiser, the Chevalier II, was bought two weeks ago by Richman from Alexander Aaron, Broadway producer, for a reported price of $4,000. The boat was insured.

Although physicians said later Mrs. Hellinger had not been burned in the slightest, she was screaming up and down the dock and was carried to an ambulance. She, Richman, Levy, Hellinger, Miss Walsh and Miss Biddle were all taken to the Eastern Long Island hospital. Physicians attended White at his home. Hellinger was released late in the day. All the others will remain in the hospital overnight, but Richman, Levy and Mrs. Hellinger will be discharged in the morning, attendants said.

Physicians who examined Miss Walsh said she might have internal injuries in addition to the burns. Miss Biddle will be held for further observation at the hospital.

Four Persons Killed In Taxi's River Dive

NEW YORK, July 26.—(UP)—Four persons were killed today when a taxi cab containing four youths and three girls ran off the end of Marigold street into the East river.

The dead: Mary Smith, 20; Helen Dext, 16; Thomas Gormley, 19; Louis Durban, 20.

Michael Favalora, driver, was charged with homicide. Smith, 17; John Martin, 22; and Martin Smith, 22, said the party had taken the cab after a dance.

Favalora refused to discuss the accident, but police said he sped past a warning light near the end of the street.

VERACRUZ IN GRIP OF MOB VIOLENCE

Would-Be Assassin of Governor Shot in Religious Disorders.

JALAPA, State of Vera Cruz, Mexico, July 26.—(AP)—A young man who attempted to assassinate Governor Adalberto Tejeda was in a hospital today and many mob leaders were in jail after a night of rioting in which four of the principal churches were damaged by fire.

In the city of Vera Cruz, two priests, Father Dario Acosta, 22, and Father Alberto Landi, 23, were killed in a raid on the Ascension church while imparting religious instruction to a congregation of children last evening.

After he had been wounded by a shot in one ear, Governor Tejeda declared from a balcony of the government palace here that "despite this campaign of terrorism, I will carry out my plan."

The governor had warned that unless the Catholic church complied with the new state religious law limiting the number of priests in the state of Vera Cruz, he would take measures to enforce it.

Eye-witnesses to the attempted assassination of the governor yesterday said his assailant was shot down after a pistol duel which lasted 15 minutes, in which the governor and his assailant shot at each other from behind pillars at the entrance to the government palace.

Assailant Silent.

The governor's assailant, in a serious condition in the hospital, refused to divulge his name.

After his attack on the governor a mob formed, obtained gasoline at an auto garage, filled station wagons, pouring the gasoline on the walls of the churches, and set fire to the buildings.

The cathedral and the churches of Calvario, Montero and San Jose were damaged before the fire was extinguished by police and troops. Several persons were injured when a wall of the San Jose church collapsed.

Police broke up the mob and made many arrests.

Bishop Guisar Valencia, in a lengthy telegram to Governor Tejeda today, protested against the killing of the two priests.

The bishop said he would gladly forfeit his life to Governor Tejeda if the governor in exchange would "leave the Catholic people to the exercise of their religion and not spill any blood of my priests."

Meanwhile Governor Tejeda, after he was wounded in the ear, said from a balcony of the government palace that "the clergy is mistaken if it thinks it can make me desist from my efforts in behalf of the enlightenment of the people by sending agents to assassinate me."

Ecclesiastical authorities have registered as unconstitutional the Vera Cruz state law which says that only 13 priests, or one for every 100,000 inhabitants, may continue to officiate in the state, which now has some 2,000.

Ministering.

Reports said that while Father Landi and Acosta were ministering to several hundred children, four men dressed in civilian clothes entered the church and took up positions near the priests. At a signal they fired simultaneously.

An assistant of the priests shot and killed one of the men.

Shaw Tells Soviets Other Countries Will Follow Lead Into Communism

MOSCOW, July 26.—(AP)—When you have succeeded in your communist revolution which I feel confident you will, George Bernard Shaw, noted British playwright, said in his first speech in Soviet Russia tonight, "the other countries will follow you fast."

Shaw, who came here last week to spend a vacation, was speaking in reply to a series of welcoming addresses for him and his party, given at a meeting in his honor tonight in the concert hall of columns, on the playwright's seventy-fifth birthday.

"It is for you to carry on your lead to an absolutely triumphant conclusion," Shaw said, "to a conclusion which will make it absolutely impossible for other countries not to follow you."

FOES OF DIVERSION OPEN FIGHT TODAY ON PARK MEASURE

Russell's Friends To Seek Reconsideration by House; Bond Issue Believed Only Alternative.

BY R. E. POWELL.

"Back home" reaction to two widely different plans of paying, in part, state debts to institutions, and the common schools is expected to assert itself this morning when members of the general assembly begin a fight over whether highway funds are to be diverted or a $5,000,000 bond issue submitted to the people.

Until Friday afternoon, when Representative Orville A. Park, of Bibb county, successfully offered an amendment to the general appropriations bill diverting 15 per cent of the gas and tag tax to the general treasury, diversion was regarded by assembly leaders as an issue killed at the polls, when Governor Russell was elected, and buried rather unceremoniously in the special session.

But it came to life Friday afternoon. The Park speech was a pulmotor that will be remembered for a long time in legislative halls, regarding the ultimate fate of diversion. Diversion may be put to sleep today or tomorrow by a parliamentary maneuver or a winning vote to reconsider the action of the committee of the whole in approving the Park amendment. Regardless of either course, it is destined to be revived, and made the main issue upon which the course of the new administration, in large measure, will be charted.

Vote Not Representative.

Discontent over the week-end decision that the vote of 83 to 62, by which the Park amendment was written into the appropriations bill, was not an indication of legislative sentiment. Sixty-two members did not vote at all. Not a few of the 83 already have agreed to vote for reconsideration of the bill.

Against these favorable administration omens is the unknown quantity of what strength a bill, separate from an appropriations amendment, might muster.

Assembly leaders are planning to move for reconsideration this morning if the roll call shows a comparatively full house in attendance. Their first objective, it has been indicated, will be to ask the assembly to reconsider by amending the general appropriations bill and the potential danger to the entire bill if the amendment fails.

There is a quite general agreement that it must either divert or submit the bond issue. The week-end contacts of members who went home, and the messages they carried to the assembly, have been received from home, are expected to result in a definite alignment of the members.

Bond Proposal Pending.

A bond issue proposal, being the names of four administration leaders, is pending in the house and another has been introduced in the senate.

All the passengers are Europeans, including Russians, with the exception of the two Americans on board, Lincoln C. FOUR ARE INJURED AS CAR OVERTURNS

Charlotte Youth Near Death at Grady After Lawrenceville Crash.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., July 26.—Four people were injured when an automobile turned over twice on Buford highway, one mile north of Lawrenceville, about noon Sunday.

Lindsey Mauchet, 18, of Charlotte, N. C., was critically injured. He is believed to have a fractured skull as well as other serious wounds about the head. He was rushed to Grady hospital, Atlanta, where his condition was reported as extremely serious.

Henry Cook, 17, driver of the car, also of Charlotte, was only slightly hurt.

Miss Delphia Cook, 23, suffered a sprained back while Mrs. I. G. Cook, of Chattanooga, had a bad cut on her hand and severe contusions.

The party were traveling from Charlotte to Chattanooga, where Mrs. I. G. Cook was going to join her husband, a brother of Henry and Delphia Cook. The car was traveling at a moderate speed and the cause of the accident is not known. The machine turned completely over twice, landing right side up on its four wheels.

Birmingham Church Backs Dr. Mordecai

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 26.—(AP)—The congregation of the fashionable First Presbyterian church of Birmingham today, by a vote of 260 to 101, urged Dr. Trevor P. Mordecai to resign his position as pastor of the church.

The vote was taken on a resolution of the board of deacons demanding his resignation. The board charged the pastor with not cooperating in the church life and "not brook any interference with his own ideas."

No charge against Dr. Mordecai's theology or his preaching was made by the resolution.

The vote was taken on a substitute for the resolution at a meeting called to discuss "pastoral relations."

Penal System Flat Failure, Wickersham Group Claims

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—The American penal system was adjudged a flat failure today by the Wickersham commission.

Reporting directly to President Hoover, the commission scored the use of brutal disciplinary measures and asserted conditions in many of the 3,000 institutions of the system were "almost incredible."

It told of men who, for offenses as slight as talking or laughing, were shackled to doors for 12 hours a day, tied down under a stream of cold water, whipped, placed in straight-jackets, confined in wire cages so small they could not move, or kept in complete darkness for days on end on a ration of four ounces of bread every 24 hours.

The prison has failed as a disciplinary institution, the report said. The riots, the fire, the use of cruel and brutal measures of punishment, the persistent recurrence of murder within the prison, the presence of narcotics, the frequent atmosphere of hate and bitterness, are sufficient evidence.

The commission said, "and equipped that it had produced small results. In 18 states, it said, contact was made with parole by correspondence alone, making it "easy to beat the game."

The whole paper system becomes a huge joke," the commission said, "and parole comes to be nothing more than a joke."

The prison has failed as a business enterprise. With few exceptions, our prison system is a costly and dependent institution. We spend on the average $350 each year for the maintenance of each individual prisoner in our penal institutions.

The commission asserted it was convinced "a new type of penal institution must be developed." It outlined a plan of its own, under which only a few prisoners would be kept in heavily barred and guarded buildings.

Prisoners would receive wages. Those with contagious diseases, the insane and drug addicts would be segregated. Education would be required. Education would be required. Education would be required.

18,000 CHINESE REPORTED SLAIN BY COMMUNISTS

More Than 70,000 Made Homeless by Pillaging and Burning, Reports From Interior Reveal.

HONGKONG, July 26.—(AP)—Reports of the massacre of 18,000 persons during a reign of terror carried on by communists who seized the city of Tunglan, Kwangsi province, were received here today in messages from the interior.

More than 70,000 persons were made homeless by pillaging and burning by the reds, advisers said, and damage estimated at $5,000,000 had been done.

The interior districts have been neglected by the military for the past several weeks during the struggle of the Canton insurgents to assert themselves against the rule of Chiang Kai-shek and his Nanking regime. Appeals for aid were received from many parts of southern China.

From southern Kwangtung province, where the reds have defeated provincial troops and established a small soviet in the Manning district, appeals were made. Airplanes were sent to Swatow, Kwangtung, to observe activities of communists in that region in response to calls for help.

Merchants in southern Fukien province, nominally under the control of Nationalist troops, reported that troops to suppress the reds, who have captured the towns of Yungting and Shanghai.

CANTON INSURGENTS UNITE AGAINST NANKING LEADERS

HONGKONG, July 26.—(AP)—Encouraged by the revolt in the north of Shensi against Chiang Kai-shek and the Nanking government, Canton insurgents were united today to demand the removal of the Nanking leaders.

Various factions of the southern insurgent movement have been united by the support of the northern warlords. French works damaged by floods to the extent of $2,000,000 are being repaired.

The Canton-Sui movement also has been reopened since December. The movement has been reopened since December. The movement has been reopened since December.

It was freely predicted that Chiang Kai-shek would abandon his campaign against the communists and embark openly on a war on Canton.

Wang Chin Wei, head of the southern insurgents, Sun Fo and other Cantonese leaders have gone to Peking to attend a rehabilitation conference of the Kwangsi province Kuomintang (people's party). It was believed that the conference would be a success.

Preparations are proceeding for the removal of the Nanking government to Canton in October to devise another national constitution on democratic lines. The plan attracts much attention because of the possible effect in nullifying the agitation of communists, who are playing an increasingly important role in national affairs.

It was generally believed that Eugene Chen, who recently went to Japan, was seeking Japanese support in the removal of the Nanking government. The Japanese government has appointed a Japanese adviser, which apparently explains reports that Japan had sent a large number of Japanese troops to arrive at Canton daily.

70-Year-Old Woman Found Murdered

ST. LOUIS, July 26.—(AP)—The body of an unidentified woman, about 70 years old, her throat slashed by a long-bladed knife, was found today in a shallow ditch beside a lonely road in St. Louis county.

A bone-handled knife, with a blood-stained blade more than three inches long, was found near the woman's head.

Physicians said the slayer must have been a man of great strength, as both the jugular veins and windpipe were severed by what appeared to be a single stroke of the blade.

Princess Ileana Weds Archduke In Simple Rites at Hilltop Castle

BY VICTOR EUBANK.

SINAI, Rumania, July 26.—(AP)—In the picturesque palace of Pelesch, perched on the crest of lofty pine-covered hills, Princess Ileana, pretty 21-year-old daughter of the late King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania, was married today to Archduke Anton, seventh son of Archduke Leopold Salvator of Hapsburg.

The wedding was the merriest day of the season of the staid summer resort of Sinai ever experienced.

The villagers were up at dawn and delegates from Princess Ileana's own corps of Girl Scouts strewed the streets with flowers and garlands.

The entire population lined the roadway to see the guests, officials, ministers and prelate arrive at the palace.

Many of the peasants rode into town bareback on country horses; others drove in old wood carts, while shepherd flute players, pipes and

GRAF HEADS NORTH IN SEARCH OF DATA

Zeppelin Leaves Leningrad With Party of Scientists Aboard.

LENINGRAD, Russia, July 26.—(AP)—Carrying Russian, German and American scientists, the Graf Zeppelin set out today for a six-day voyage of exploration and scientific study in the far north.

The dirigible took off from Leningrad at 11:10 a. m. (4:10 a. m., E. S. T.).

Unfavorable atmospheric conditions the big dirigible lifted her nose from the special mooring mast a little more than 14 hours after her arrival here from Berlin to take on hydrogen from a special storage tank erected for her.

Just before the start Dr. Hugo Eckener, her commander, said he was leaving for the north fully confident of success and hoped to reach Franz Josef Land within 24 hours, unless hindered by the weather, which, according to the latest reports, was not favorable.

When in the neighborhood of Franz Josef Land, Dr. Eckener added, the Graf Zeppelin will try to establish immediate contact with the Soviet ice-breaker, Malig.

The third arctic dirigible expedition in history carried 12 scientists, a photographer, two journalists and a Russian wireless operator, besides a regular crew of 30.

The American members of the expedition are: Lieutenant Commander E. H. Smith, of the United States coast guard, and Lincoln Ellsworth, sportsman and explorer.

Headed by Professor Rudolph S. Molitor, Russian scientific director of the expedition, and Dr. Eckener, veteran commander of the Graf, the expedition expects to cover approximately 7,000 miles on a cruise which is for the purpose of gathering meteorological and geographical data with a view to determining whether a regular dirigible route across the north pole is feasible.

No attempt will be made to cross the pole, the farthest north point on the journey being about 82 degrees latitude.

A new pontoon arrangement makes it possible for the dirigible to alight on water. Several such descents to the ocean were contemplated, including one for the meeting with the Malig, which is carrying scientists and tourists.

Another feature of the expedition, which is sponsored jointly by Russian and German scientists, will be the first trial of wireless-controlled balloons perfected by Professor Paul Moltschnow, Russian scientist, today in a shallow ditch beside a lonely road in St. Louis county.

The only inconvenience on the trip appeared to be the limited amount of water for washing distributed each morning, not more than two glasses of water being allowed each member of the expedition for this purpose.

The Graf Zeppelin is expected back in Leningrad after five or six days.

IBANEZ IS DENIED AID OF CONGRESS IN LEAVING NATION

All But One of South America's "Strong Men" Gone as Chilean President Yields to Insistent Foes' Demands.

POLICE AND ARMY PREVENT RIOTING

Wild Demonstrations of Joy Mark Santiago's Reception of Dictator's Defeat and Withdrawal.

BY HAROLD P. BRAMAN.

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 26.—(AP)—President Carlos Ibanez del Campo, Chilean dictator and self-styled "man of destiny," fell from power today by his own hands.

In the face of an incipient civil revolution, the man who once said semi-publicly he enjoyed "divine guidance" in ruling as he thought necessary, and who took for his own the principal precepts of Premier Mussolini of Italy and former Dictator Primo De Rivera of Spain, turned in his resignation today.

The Chilean crisis, which was the first dangerous situation arising since General Ibanez assumed office in July, 1927, for a six-year term, grew out of the declining price of nitrates and copper—the two great exports of the nation. Drastic administration reforms were started a year ago in an effort to avoid an economic crisis, but the government could not prevent suspension of payments on interest and amortization of foreign obligations last week.

The resignation was verbal in form. It was made as a request to the Chilean congress for safe conduct out of the country.

The resignation was promptly accepted by the congress, which formally declared Pedro Opazo, president of the Chilean senate, vice president of Chile and acting president.

The Chilean chamber of deputies, however, rejected the request for permission to leave the country and demanded his prosecution.

The president's resignation has been demanded for a week. It was expected today or tomorrow, but it came with a Chilean and suddenness just as a popular uprising of the masses was being organized in the form of a general strike.

The determined, grey-haired president had persistently refused to yield to political demands that he step out to avoid fighting such as accompanied the revolutions in Bolivia, the Argentine, Paraguay and Panama in the last year.

The conferences at Moneda palace lasted for many hours in which the critical financial situation of the country was discussed by the students were discussed.

It followed three days and nights of rioting in the streets, during which a Chilean and suddenness just as a popular uprising of the masses was being organized in the form of a general strike.

Senor Opazo announced after being sworn in at a joint session of the congress that a true constitutional government will be initiated, with full personal freedom. He said he would administer the affairs of the country until elections can be held.

Plans for Cabinet.

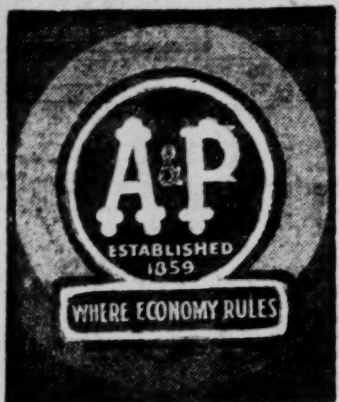

Esteban Montero, who was minister of the interior in the cabinet of former Premier Blanquier, which lasted eight days, was chosen by Senor Opazo to form a cabinet in which former Premier Blanquier will be minister of finance.

Former Minister Ibanez began to step down late last night. Behind the thick and well-guarded wall of the palace of Moneda, he discussed his plans with advisors, and at 4 a. m. today he made his decision to resign.

The decision was kept secret from everyone except a few persons until late in the evening, when he was summoned during the morning.

The secrecy resulted in a rumor.

ENGLAND CHECKS GOLD SHIPMENTS

Gold Withdrawal Believed
Halted After Loss of $160,000,000.

LONDON, July 26.—(AP)—Gold withdrawals from the Bank of England, which amounted to 32,000,000 pounds sterling (about $160,000,000) in 11 days, were believed checked today.

During the 11 days there have been no withdrawals from New York, indicating an understanding between New York and London banking authorities. Most of the gold was taken to Paris. A hopeful sign was the recovery in Paris exchange on London to 123.95 francs and the New York sterling rate of $4.85 15-16, both slightly above points at which gold exports were profitable.

It was stated when Paris started withdrawing gold in the early days of the German financial troubles—which culminated in last week's seven-power conference at London—that the Bank of England could stand a fair-sized loss of gold with equanimity.

The persistence with which Paris exchange kept below the gold point, however, making profitable the movement of gold to the continent, caused the Bank of England to take a protective measure last Thursday in raising the bank rate 1 per cent in the hope of retaining gold slightly above exchange rates. This had the desired effect on the rates Saturday and already one shipment of gold arranged for Tuesday has been cancelled.

7,396 POUNDS OF GOLD
REACH PARIS SATURDAY
PARIS, July 26.—(AP)—British gold to the weight of 7,396 4-5 pounds was brought to Le Bourget, France, by airplane Saturday, it was learned today.

The newspaper Temps, commenting in its weekly financial review on the past week's unprecedented exit of gold from England, notes that the pound did not reach or surpass the "gold point" until yesterday.

"If the pound's betterment is maintained during the next few days and if it puts an end to the abnormal gold movements of the past fortnight," Le Temps says, "one of the Bourne's greatest worries will be dispelled."

EPISCOPAL CHURCH MAY MOVE FOR UNITY

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—The joint commission on faith and order of the Protestant Episcopal church in a report today said it would ask the general convention in Denver, September 16, to call a second world conference on church unity "not later than 1932."

The report, made public by the commission's secretary, the Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins Jr., recognizes the "amazingly increased interest" in the movement for a union of the churches which was given impetus by the first world conference on Christian unity in Lausanne, Switzerland, in August, 1927.

The findings of the Lausanne conference, which expressed recognition of the needs for Christian unity, are approved by the commission. Dr. Tompkins reports, and the general convention will be asked to approve the Lausanne findings.

With the filing of its report, the commission states, the Episcopal church yields the leadership of the church unity movement which it occupied up to the meeting of the first Lausanne conference to the continuation committee appointed by the conference, composed of the 140 representatives of the 14 Christian bodies which participated in the conference.

"The popular notion that the Lausanne conference completed the task (of church unification) is erroneous," he charged the ground so that the churches might know where they stood in regard to reunion.

"Since then, interest in the movement has amazingly increased. Many of the great churches which, before Lausanne, had looked on the movement with suspicion, as an Anglican enterprise, have come to see the need of study and discussion before practical steps toward reunion can be possible, and are giving genuine co-operation to this end."

"Besides these evidences of increasing interest in the faith and order movement, there are other significant occurrences having no official connection with the movement, but showing the world-wide growth of the will to unity."

"Among these are the steps actually taken toward reunion in south India; the hopeful progress of plans for reunion between the Anglican church and the eastern orthodox and old Catholic churches; the important decisions of the Lambeth conference of 1930 and, in the United States, many conferences on unity as well as actual movements for reunion between a number of allied churches, some of which have been completed since Lausanne, while others are in process of achievement."

Pneumonia Imperils Many of Those Saved From Fire

PITTSBURGH, July 26.—(AP)—A fight began today to prevent pneumonia from taking the lives of many of those rescued from fire that destroyed the home for the aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor here Friday night and early Saturday.

The number of lives lost in the blaze mounted to 27 over the weekend, with the deaths of Mrs. Mary Filey, 76; Mrs. Theresa Risinger, 81; Bridget Shea, 72; and Mrs. Mary Connor, 90.

Fear that shock and exposure would result in many deaths was expressed as the 250 victims were being taken to hospitals as the fire still raged. Today, that toll believed taken, doctors and nurses toiled over more than 150 old and infirm men and women to help them rebuild their strength to offset the ravages of disease.

No trace had been found of 11 persons in the institution at the time of the fire. No bodies were found in the ruins. The supposition was that the 11 were being cared for in private homes, but where and what care was being given was unknown.

The number of unidentified dead dropped to 12, meanwhile, with the identification of Mrs. Mary E. Hite, 67.

What caused the fatal blaze still was not definitely determined. Fire department officials said they believed spontaneous combustion in a mop that had been used in waxing and polishing floors seemed the most likely explanation. Fire broke out in the charred ruins again this afternoon, but was quickly detected and extinguished.

'Bluffs' Paving Way to Violence At Joliet Prison, Warden Fears

JOLIET, Ill., July 26.—(AP)—A desperate game of wits with leaders of malcontents among the convicts plotted against prison officials was the situation at the Illinois state penitentiary as pictured today by Warden Henry C. Hill.

"Convicts intent on inciting another riot spread word about that an uprising will be staged at a specified time," the warden said. "They know this information will reach officials through informers and that we will prepare for such a contingency, as we did twice last week."

"The leaders then call off the demonstration. By repeatedly causing these false alarms they think we will ultimately relax our vigilance and when that time comes they intend to strike."

Warden Hill, however, convinced that the prisoners are but marking time, has taken every precaution. Special squads of highway police have been detailed to places near the penitentiary to remain on call, and additional guards are being brought into service to supplement the regular force.

A series of riots occurred at the institution last spring and resulted in the deaths of several convicts as well as $500,000 damage to the new penitentiary by fire. Last week word reached officials that plans were under way for similar outbreaks.

The 2,600 convicts, including some of the most desperate characters in the country, were locked in cells and a thorough search of the institution for arms and combustibles was started.

Thus far eight flame bombs and numerous improvised weapons have been discovered in cell caches. The search probably will last 10 days.

Warden Hill believes the unrest is caused by a comparatively few mutinous prisoners. A majority of the men, he said, are out of sympathy with the malcontents, but are forced by fear of reprisals to obey orders of the desperadoes.

BIG REDUCTION SEEN IN GAS VALUATIONS

Reduction in valuations of Atlanta gas light properties by about $3,000,000 was seen Sunday by Dr. John J. Bauer, rate expert of the Municipal Utilities Rate Association of Georgia, as he reviewed preliminary reports of the survey he is conducting for Atlanta in the fight to prevent an estimated 30 per cent increase in rates. He estimates the value of the property at $7,000,000.

Although the report is not yet completed, and probably will not be for the next few weeks, Dr. Bauer repeated estimates he made several weeks ago in a hearing before the public service commission basing his latest statements on data thus far compiled.

He is engaged in making a survey for City Attorney James L. Mayson and a special council committee headed by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, which will be used in resisting the effort to hike Atlanta gas rates.

It is anticipated that the Bauer report will be in the hands of Atlanta officials by September 1, after which a certain time for preparation of Atlanta's claims will be allowed. The commission granted Atlanta 90 days in which to complete the survey and this time limit will expire September 4.

Professor H. E. Riggs, for the public service commission, and Dr. Charles Spooner, for the gas company, have filed valuations with the commission. Riggs' estimate was $9,925,110, while Spooner's was even higher.

Causes for these discrepancies in valuations, Dr. Bauer holds, are failure of the other experts to allow properly for depreciation, failure to make itemization of values placed on physical properties, the two taking a total figure fixed by a master at hearing in 1924 adding expenditures since that time, excessive charges for improvements.

Bauer hit former estimates dealing with the charges for improvements as "rankly and obviously excessive" the special reference being charges for $1.90 a foot for six-inch mains.

Gas company officials contend that the revision in gas rates is necessary to insure proper, efficient service, holding that the company is actually losing money.

Borough administration leaders have fought consistently an attempt to hike the price of the commodity at this time, Mayor James L. Key contending that the gas company should do as other companies are doing "absorb any losses it may be forced to take at this time and await return of business to normalcy."

CHICAGO BULLETS KILL UNION CHIEF

Assassins Pour Lead
From Moving Car To Murder Ely Orr.

CHICAGO, July 26.—(AP)—Ely H. Orr, secretary-treasurer of the Newspaper Delivery Drivers, Chauffeurs and Handlers Union, was shot to death shortly after he left the plant of the Herald and Examiner early today.

Two men in a speeding automobile poured a fusillade of shotgun slugs into Orr as he sat in his machine at a street intersection awaiting the go signal from a stop light.

A newsboy, Emil Woznicki, only witness to the shooting, said the slayers laughed as they drove away.

Orr recently supplanted "West Side" Jack Barry as secretary of the union. Attaches of the state's attorney's office immediately ordered a search for Barry, an ex-convict. An arrest order also was issued for Anthony (Red) Kissane, gunman.

The victim, for 27 years an employee of the Herald-Examiner, prior to his election to the union office last December 12, visited the newspaper office at 5 a. m. in company with two business agents, Dan Fiore and Herbert Phelps. The business agents said they parted from Orr and went into the restaurant for breakfast while the victim drove away toward his home. His story was corroborated by Fiore's son, an employee of the Herald and Examiner, and Policeman Anthony Halvorsen, who engaged the three in conversation.

It was a few blocks away from the newspaper plant at the intersection of Milwaukee and Fullerton avenues that the assassins caught up with the Orr machine.

Young Woznicki was taken to the detective bureau, where he was shown rogues' gallery photographs of suspects. It was not announced if any identification was made, but squads were detailed to bring in Barry and Kissane.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles F. Lounsbury said he had information Barry had several times threatened Orr's life. The latter was elected to the office at a meeting held under supervision of the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office, following a plea from President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, to all union locals to oust known racketeers.

Barry, Lounsbury said, was a pal of James (Fur) Sammons, notorious O'Donnell gangster.

He was once charged with complicity in a $300,000 liquor warehouse robbery. He also served a term in Leavenworth penitentiary for complicity with "Big Tim" Murphy in the $345,000 Dearborn street mail robbery.

GERMANY GAINS HOPE FOR CREDIT RETENTION

Resumption of Bank Payments Seen as Turning Point for Nation.

BERLIN, July 26.—(AP)—Millions of Germans, who have been experiencing anxious days since the great Darmstadter and National bank closed its doors two weeks ago, tonight had several tangible facts upon which they were pinning a hope that this week might prove the turning point for the hard-pressed finances of the nation.

The first was the creation of a new acceptance and guarantee by the government and leading bankers, designed to permit the resumption of normal bank payments, and the provision at the same time for a German "freezing commission" to work with the international commission in preventing further withdrawals of short-term credits from Germany.

Other facts were the presence of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in Berlin and the prospect of the arrival tomorrow from London of Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson, of Great Britain. The presence of the American secretary of state and the prospective presence of Great Britain's ministers was fostering an assurance that Anglo-Saxon nations were determined to remain all in their power to assist Germany.

It was being widely realized here that an enduring solution of Europe's economic ills depends upon Franco-German understanding. But it was also becoming a conviction that the Anglo-Saxon nations were convinced that a financially ailing Germany would be a poor foundation for international understanding.

Scattered Showers Predicted for Today

Continued relief from mid-summer heat is promised for Atlanta and vicinity today by the United States weather bureau. Outlook for today and tonight is for cloudy weather, with the possibility of light showers during the afternoon.

Sunday's weather included scattered showers and almost continuously cloudy skies. The temperature during the day was well below the torrid range experienced by this section during the last few days. The weather bureau expects today to be much the same as Sunday, with respect to temperatures and precipitation.

Tired of Birthdays, Says Voorhis As He Plans To Celebrate 102d

BY HARRY FERGUSON.
NEW YORK, July 26.—(UP)—John R. Voorhis, president of the board of elections and sashmen of Tammany Hall, will be 102 years old tomorrow, but he isn't interested in the event and doesn't think anyone else is.

He is wrong, as he will find out tomorrow when the customary queue of well-wishers assemble to congratulate him, and, perhaps, "ask silly questions." Whether the line will form at his office as in the past, or at the home to which he has been confined recently on a diet of milk and eggs six times a day depends on his physician. He also has agreed, health permitting, to broadcast at 2 p. m. on "New York 99 years ago, at least."

One reason Voorhis is bored with birthdays is that he has spent three months, one week and four days of his life celebrating them.

"There are others," he said from the wheel chair in his home. "Let the boys have their birthdays. I have had enough. There will be no birthday cake. I had my last one last year."

U. S. BUREAU CHIEFS PLAN SWEEPING CUTS

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—Governmental bureau chiefs today wrinkled their brows as they sought new answers to familiar questions on finance.

President Hoover has directed them to give detailed information as to how they expect to decrease expenses even more for the current fiscal year. They must have the data in the hands of the bureau of the budget by August 17.

Renewed insistence on further cuts came only a few weeks after a series of conferences between the chief executives of the various departments and the camp on the Rapidan. The discussions were concerned almost entirely with ways to slash expenditures.

Out of them came the statement that the president expected $150,000,000 would be saved during the current fiscal year.

The war and agriculture departments advised the president they hoped to reduce expenditures by approximately $20,000,000 each; the navy forecast a $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 reduction; the postoffice department about $15,000,000 and the interior department $14,000,000.

The additional amounts needed to approximate the $150,000,000 were not made public. It was explained that the war department would retain some of its funds by abandoning army posts no longer needed for military purposes. The navy was to abandon the island of Guam, but the details involved in most of the program were not given.

GEWINNER SOUGHT ON HOLDUP CHARGE

Chief Beavers said he knew nothing further concerning the charges. Holbrook could not be reached Sunday night.

Radiology Meet.

PARIS, July 26.—(AP)—The third international congress on radiology convened at the Sorbonne today for a six-day session with treatment of cancer and its standardization as the principal topics of interest.

With one sweeping blow the Calles plan wipes out all debts in gold within the country and makes them payable in silver, peso for peso. Yesterday the man in the street who received his salary in silver and paid his rent in gold had to buy the gold at a 40 per cent premium over silver.

Another side of the picture, however, was not so bright. Holders of gold accounts must convert the payments on these into dollars or other foreign exchange and stand a heavy loss unless the quotation of the silver peso against foreign money radically improved.

Two Seriously Hurt When Plane Crashes

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 26.—(UP)—Two men were seriously injured when a barnstorming airplane in which they were flying crashed on the ground from an altitude of about 200 feet near here today. The pilot of the plane suffered minor hurts.

Those injured were Arthur Casswell, 65, and Ralph B. Lawton, 31, both of this city. They were taken to Gale hospital, where Lawton's condition was reported grave.

George Broome, of Boston, pilot, told authorities the plane struck an air pocket after taking off from Haverhill airport and went into a spin. The accident occurred a short distance from the Massachusetts-New Hampshire state line.

About 4,000 houses were destroyed and more than 10,000 persons were homeless in the stricken area.

TENNESSEE ROBBERY CONFESSED BY YOUTH

CELEINA, Tenn., July 26.—(AP)—Sheriff Alex Spear said tonight that one of two youths arrested at Scottsboro, Ky., Saturday "on suspicion" had confessed to the attempted robbery of the Bank of Hermitage Springs Friday and had implicated the other.

Sheriff Spear said they gave their names as Seth Carver, 18, and Vestal King, 20, both of Macon county. King allegedly confessed to the holdup attempt in which the holdup men fled without money and abandoned their car when flames burst from it as they were pursued. Carver made no statement.

FOURTEEN CAPTURED WITH LIQUOR CARGO

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, N. Y., July 26.—(AP)—A two-hour gun battle early this morning between police and suspected rum-runners on a dock here ended at daybreak with the arrest of 14 men and confiscation of liquor said to be worth more than $42,000. One of the men arrested was wounded.

Those arrested, police said, were members of a gang headed by Vannie Higgins, reputed associate of Jack (Legs) Diamond, and were unloading liquor from the 60-foot yacht Colonial.

Summer residents living less than 100 feet from the dock narrowly escaped injuries from bullets.

The battle started about 3:30 a. m. when police received a telephone tip from a woman.

Three patrolmen who hurried to the scene found men transporting cases and burlap bags from the yacht to a truck. They said they fired two shots in the air, and were answered by a volley from the revolvers of men on the dock.

Additional policemen were summoned and John Ruffo was shot in both legs. He refused to identify his employers.

Ruffo, with the 13 others, were charged with the transportation of liquor, felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan act.

Navy To Plumb Caribbean Depths Seeking Data on Causes of 'Quakes

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—The navy plans to plumb the great Bartlett Deep, in the Caribbean sea, between the Bay of Honduras and Guantamano, Cuba, in search of important data bearing on Central American earthquakes.

This huge trough in the bottom of the sea, 1,000 miles long, 50 to 60 miles across, and of uncertain depth, is known to be an earthquake center, but adequate soundings have never been made.

The Bartlett Deep stands as the missing link in the calculations of geologists seeking light on such earthquakes as the one which ruined the Nicaraguan capital, Managua, on March 31.

This interest is all the keener because of the possible effect of earthquakes on Uncle Sam's proposed canal across Nicaragua.

Until the contour, scarps and faults of the land miles below the surface in the area between Cuba and Honduras has been accurately determined, it is felt impossible to determine with precision whether the United States made a good investment in purchasing the canal site.

Atlanta Reserves Of Army and Navy Complete Training

Atlanta's national guardsmen and naval reservists are home from their annual summer tours of duty.

The national guardsmen, members of the 122d infantry, returned early Sunday morning from Fort McClellan, Ala., where for two weeks they had undergone rigorous training under the supervision of their commander, Colonel Gerald P. O'Keefe.

The naval reservists, under Lieutenant Commander Harry Dobbs, arrived Sunday from Charleston, where they disembarked Saturday after a cruise which included a visit to Nassau.

All signs point to the fact that all cars are coming to free wheeling originated by Studebaker Builder of Champions

With complete data in hand, geologists are expected to be enabled to verify or refute the theory that the large lakes which make up an important part of the suggested canal may be drained through subterranean channels by another earthquake.

Three patrolmen who hurried to the scene found men transporting cases and burlap bags from the yacht to a truck. They said they fired two shots in the air, and were answered by a volley from the revolvers of men on the dock.

MEETING THE DEFICIT.

Whatever may be done by this general assembly on the many tax expedient measures under consideration it is certain that the year will expire with a tremendous deficit unless one or two things are done.

First, a part of the proceeds of the state highway fund must be allocated to meet the deficit, or—

Second, a bond issue of five million dollars must be authorized to get the state out of debt.

As between these alternatives, The Constitution is of the opinion that the bonding plan is the better, especially as under this plan provision is made that interest and sinking fund requirements, after two years, are to be paid out of the proceeds of the highway fund. This will enable the state to stabilize its finances, without in the slightest degree interfering with the highway fund for two years, and then only a small part of this fund will be diverted to amortize the small bond issue.

A proposition of this kind submitted to the people will be overwhelmingly ratified, for this plan will save the state from the humiliation of a continued deficit.

The house of representatives has voted immediate diversion of a part of the highway fund, and action is to be taken today on reconsideration.

There can be no doubt that the question of immediate diversion of a part of this fund to meet the state's deficit was an outstanding issue in the last campaign. Knowing the position of each candidate, Governor Russell was overwhelmingly elected on a platform that there should be no diversion at this time.

Unless another method is adopted the immediate diversion expedient must be resorted to, to save the state.

The only other method possible, without unbearably increasing the burden of the taxpayers, is the bonding plan, payment for which, after all, comes out of the highway fund, and in such small measure as not to seriously affect the work of the department, and which gives the department two more years of use of the full fund now at its disposal. During this time the state will be criss-crossed by a magnificent system of through highways—north, east, south and west. After that the requirements of the department will be less than now.

It is up to the house this morning to see which of these two methods will be adopted. One or the other must be, and the issue may be as well faced now as later.

DOUBLE TAXATION MEANS RUIN.
The last regular session of the general assembly adopted a state-wide sales tax with limitations practically confining the operation of the tax to cities and large towns.

It was announced that it was only a temporary measure and the tax expires with this year.

But a proposal is now before the general assembly to renew it.

The same legislature that adopted the sales tax enacted an income tax. For this legislature now to apply both an income tax and a sales tax would bring ruin to many business establishments in the state.

whichever would bring the greatest revenue to the state.

Georgia cannot afford to go on indefinitely placing additional burdens on business concerns already groaning under the load they are carrying, or else it will place itself in the position of the man who killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

Each successive legislature has been piling on taxes of every nature until we have reached the point where a halt must be called. A continuation of such a policy will mean that many business houses, with operating expenses cut to the bone and holding on for the coming of better times only through their reserve capital and the use of borrowed money, will be forced to the wall.

Instead of raising taxes, the legislature should come to the aid of business by lightening its load of taxation to the utmost extent.

AN AMAZING PROPOSAL.

The legislative proposal of a tax on oleomargarine is nothing less than an effort to penalize a product made largely of Georgia-grown materials for the benefit of a commodity on which other states hold a practical monopoly.

Cottonseed oil, a major product of Georgia agriculture, is one of the principal ingredients of oleomargarine, as is also peanut oil. Last year this state produced 215,000,000 pounds of cottonseed oil, valued at approximately $30,000,000. A sufficient per cent went into the making of oleomargarine to have brought about a collapse in this by-product of cotton if this outlet had been closed.

As the result of a carefully planned and energetically backed campaign, bills aimed at oleomargarine have been introduced in several states during the past six or eight months, notwithstanding the fact that the federal government now collects a tax of 10 cents per pound.

South Dakota has placed a tax of five cents per pound on vegetable shortening; Iowa has a bill pending calling for a three-cent tax and a five-cent proposal was defeated in North Dakota. A bill was passed in Ohio making it illegal to use substitutes for lard and butter in state institutions and only the governor's veto defeated a similar law in Oregon. It is proposed in Wisconsin to require all highway contractors to use only lard and butter.

Concurrent with these bills, others, so similar in verbiage as to clearly indicate the same origin, were introduced in Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina and Alabama, in the last four of which they have already been roundly defeated.

It is significant that the measure now before the Georgia legislature follows closely in wording and purpose the bills introduced in the other cotton-raising states.

The chief iniquity of this bill from a Georgia standpoint lies in the fact that while it would penalize one of our main products, its only benefits would accrue to states to which we send millions of dollars each year for butter.

Georgia now produces less than 2,000,000 pounds of butter annually, but we import each year from the great dairying states of the northwest between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 pounds.

Aside from the question as to whether such legislation will help the group sponsoring it or harm those who oppose it, is the chief consideration of its effect upon the people generally.

The answer as to the attitude of the public is to be found in the action of the states of Washington, Oregon and California, none large producers of either butter or vegetable oils, where bills similar to the one now pending in the Georgia legislature were passed but when put to a referendum were overwhelmingly defeated by the voters.

Fortunately this nation-wide campaign to put an added tax on what is generally termed "the poor man's butter" has met with such stiff opposition, even in some of the great dairying states, as to have minimized its results so far.

Typical of this attitude is the position taken by the Detroit News when it termed the anti-oleomargarine bill before the Michigan legislature as a "wicked measure, calling for a vicious tax." Furthermore, The News continued:

"Such a tax is a sort of tariff on goods Michigan does not wholly produce, since the ingredients of oleomargarine come chiefly from cattle and southern vegetable oils. It would act therefore as a negation of free trade between the states, the basis of American prosperity. Its chief wickedness, however, consists in the fact that it would tax no one but the poor, who should rather be relieved of the tax burden."

The desire of the butter-producing states to put a tax handicap on the wholesome and healthy substitute for their product can be understood, but should Georgia join in any such movement it would put itself in the anomalous position of robbing its own taxpayers for the benefits of states to which we are already paying heavy tribute in the shape of purchases running into the millions.

It is unthinkable that Georgia should give even serious consideration to the amazing suggestion that she join in any such attempted discrimination against one of her chief products.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

The Perfect Burglar.

Mr. Edgar Wallace has been experimenting with a new technique. He has just completed a novel based on the life and character of Charles Peace. "The writing of this book," he called "The Devil Man," has been one of the most difficult and yet fascinating tasks I have ever undertaken," said Mr. Wallace, when he arrived in Paris recently for a holiday.

"It is probably true that I know more strange men than any other living writer. But how I wish I could represent them! Peace is a little murderer, whom women could not resist. He was a musician, a skilled craftsman, the perfect burglar, a hypocrite and a twisted genius; but the outstanding feature of his character was his inordinate vanity. It took me four years to collect the facts. Mr. Wallace added: 'Four months to construct the book, and four days to write it, and my greatest difficulty lay in the having to refer to the reference to the motor car, which did not, of course, exist in Peace's time.'

Back to Church.

In an investigation that has been made in rural areas of America, it was found that the churches are losing members. The survey was undertaken by the Institute of Social and Religious Research, and according to their report, a general tendency in the territory studied was for the churches to lose their power to attract and hold their people. In some cases, the churches are losing members at an accelerating pace, it is mentioned in the report.

In Vermont, the proportion of families to churches is declining at a rate of 50 years. Hundreds of hamlets and many thousands of square miles of hinterland are without religious services. In other localities, churches at ministry have been abandoned. If evenly spaced, the churches in the grazing lands would be 18 miles apart and those of the mountain sections 13; while the distance between neighboring churches in the valleys is only three or four miles. In the old level areas only three and a half miles, says the report.

It also states that the attractions of modern life in towns, cities and suburbs are drawing people away from the churches. The report also states that the churches are losing members at an accelerating pace, it is mentioned in the report.

Unbalancing Modern Life.

A national society for the study and prevention of suicides with branches in all cities, Frederick L. Hoffman, who is alarmed at the increasing number of suicides in America. Suicide, Hoffman says, is a social problem of the first importance in America. Writing in The Spectator, a New York journal, Hoffman says: "Every student of the suicide problem knows full well that adequate methods of prevention could easily be devised. A large number of deaths from self-destruction, which now measurably increase our annual death-rate. On the basis of current statistics, the annual loss of life by suicide in continental United States may be conservatively estimated at between 18,000 and 20,000. Unfortunately there is no means of estimating accurately the number of attempts at suicide in this country which fail, but which in the light of such data as are available easily reaches 30,000 and probably more."

"In other words, combining the suicides who succeed and those who fail, there are some 50,000 more or less mentally unbalanced persons in this country, of whom every year about two-fifths succeed in putting an end to what is, in many cases, a life worth saving. Half of these, I feel sure, could have been prevented; and if, in the light of 40 years of an active interest in the problem of self-destruction, believing that if timely aid and qualified advice were forthcoming at the right time many a valuable life might be spared. Only a national society for the purpose of studying the prevention of suicide, and the causes of the principal cities, can hope to cope with the problem in all its vast and intricate ramifications."

"Suicide itself is largely responsible for a large share of the annual toll of deaths by self-destruction. For it is the shame of our civilization that lies at the root of the problem, and the productive causes of the confusion which inevitably at present drives thousands to seek in suicide the only way out."

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 26.—The season for beaches, sun-tan and cold drinks is having a rival; it is also Hollywood's season for story-stealing. In some of the most interesting of the stories told by the Hollywood story-stealers, the story is told of a Hollywood story-stealer who stole a story from a Hollywood story-stealer.

Capturing the idea while the author was to hear whether or not his story has been accepted or rejected. Agents, heretofore secure in the fact that their reputations and the reputation of the studio would be at stake in the event of the idea being stolen, are now being told that they have had some fast ones put over on them. Stories with a new turn frequently are turned and the "new turn" is often a story that has been told many times before. The story-stealer is now being told that he has stolen a story from a Hollywood story-stealer.

Due to the superb indifference of Ernest Hemingway, who just can't be bothered with a Hollywood studio, it seems as if a little case of plagiarism was ever heard of has gone among us with the Hemingway story all there, under different title and in many cases, the names of the characters changed.

Perhaps the lad who is accused of lifting the Hemingway story felt he had done enough when he went to the trouble of shifting the locale and the names. (No light job in this hot weather.)

A test story is going the rounds of the Hollywood studios, and it has an original turn. And the author is watching to see which one of the boys will make an attempt to use of federal injunctions to prevent use of free bridges over the Red river.

A speedy manner of emptying prison cells. This is unfortunately the case in the majority of the American states today.

The commission devoted much of its report, which, with the addition of a report by an advisory committee of state judges, is being sent to the governor, to the question of the present prison conditions.

It revealed federal prisons during 1929 and 1930 overcrowded 15.9 per cent more than capacity. It was well over one-third of all the prisoners in the country were between 70 and 100 years old, and that 21 per cent of all the prisoners were without plumbing.

The state prisons in Oregon, the Charleston prison in Massachusetts, the Auburn and Clinton prisons in New York, the Folsom prison in California and the old prison at Joliet, Ill., were given as examples of such institutions.

The commission criticized the size of the cells, small for one man but housing two, which it found in many of the older prisons. In these restricted quarters, it said, the air would have to be changed completely in each cell every few minutes to prevent objectionable odors.

CONSERVING THE VISION OF NEAR-SIGHTED EYES.

Whether it is because the postoffice authorities are more vigilant in preventing the use of the mails for fraud, or because the laity is becoming less glib and better informed, I don't know, but certainly I do not receive as many inquiries now as I did formerly about mysterious "eye exercises" that mail-order firms offered customers—exercises purporting to strengthen the eyes and to do away with the need of spectacles.

Young persons with myopia (near-sightedness) almost always wish they were not along without glasses, and so these humbug "natural" methods are pressed strongly to them.

I am just an ordinary doctor, not an oculist or eye doctor—ophthalmologist, as we doctors call him—and in fact I think ophthalmology as a special field of practice is rather backward as compared with other special branches of medicine. The trouble is, so many ophthalmologists are conceited enough to think they can be oculists (ear specialists), rhinologists (nose specialists) and otologists (ear specialists) as well. What ophthalmology needs today is a few ophthalmologists.

Young persons with near-sightedness must learn to conserve the vision of vision depends mainly upon the amount of rest they can give their eyes now while they are young. This means that the young person must avoid the eyesight should be carefully avoided. To avoid strain, if you are near-sighted, always wear your glasses when you read, write or do any kind of near work with your eyes.

It is a fortunate thing for the vision of near-sighted eyes that the child requires resting from time to time, and that the resting eye sees without the focusing power of the eye at rest. That is, it is fortunate if the test or examination is made by an ophthalmologist (oculist, eye physician), for he will put drops in the eyes to put the accommodation or focusing effect at rest, so that the test will show what the resting eye sees without any strain, conscious or unconscious, on the part of the patient. It is a distinctly beneficial thing for near-sighted eyes in a young person, and he kept under the effects of such drops for a week or more, now and then, as a complete rest for the eyes.

A given rest for the eyes is possible amount of physiological rest and prevent strain, do all close work you can do, and endeavor to take advantage of every opportunity for open air exercise or outdoor sports or occupations.

If any form of eye exercise can do good in any defect of vision it is certainly the exercise of the eyes in open air. It is the best form of exercise you can give them.

Many of us older folk can have our vision improved just as well by an optometrist or an optician as by a physician, for after we get to middle age our accommodation or focusing power is so limited that it does not matter how many drops are necessary for an accurate test of our eyesight. But you know there are lots of things that are all right for grown-ups yet all wrong for children.

The Creatures That Outlive Man

Never Feel Their Pulse

By Robert Quillen

Laymen have more respect for science than scientists have.

Physicians, for example, have little respect for the curative powers of medicine. They know that less than half a dozen specific cures have been discovered since the practice of medicine began. The more experience they have, the less they trust in pills and potions.

Laymen believe anything they are told in the name of science. Patent medicine no longer is permitted to make false claims, but almost everything else the layman consumes, from tooth paste to cigarettes, is guaranteed to cure or prevent some dreadful ailment.

And every discovery science makes is somehow harnessed by charlatans to cultivate a new crop of suckers.

Much publicity, good and bad, has made us so "health conscious" that we eat and drink in terms of calories and vitamins and take the joy out of living by making it "scientific."

We duck to evade germs when we hear a cough; we wipe away the microbes after a kiss; we dose and diet ourselves more than any other people on earth, and we are fast becoming a nation of neurotic cranks.

Child-like faith in "science" has robbed us of common sense. Quack magazine advertising has made us fad addicts.

Yeast, orange juice and light waves are expected to cure all human ailments, except the few that require removal of the teeth and tonsils, and to miss one's daily iron or brass or silicate is to flirt with the undertaker.

Yet our fathers lived long without knowledge of these matters, and people thrive in other lands despite their ignorance of health foods and balanced diets.

Nature's laws haven't changed. The things essential to man's health are the things shared by other animals; fresh air, sunshine, pure water, wholesome food, and as much exercise as wild creatures take in pursuit of their dinner.

The "balanced diet," regarded as a modern discovery, was included in nature's menu at the beginning and is known to the apes of the jungle. A man will eat anything that tastes good and agrees with him, he will get all the vitamins he needs.

Nature's way is the wise and necessary way. And health, in nature's scheme, is a thing to enjoy—not a burden of anxiety.

Chicks Pound Out Double Victory over Crackers, 6-4 and 4-2; Billy Reese Trounces Simpson To Take Atlanta Tennis Crown

MEMPHIS SLUGS TO DOUBLE WIN OVER CRACKERS

Chicks Cop, 6-4, 4-2; Brazil Stars; Cummings Bows Nicely.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 26.—Mr. Frank Brazil led Memphis to a double victory and a clean sweep of the series before an audience of 6,576 persons at Russell Park today.

Mr. Brazil, who plays first base and does other odd jobs for the Chicks, won the final of the series when he blasted one off Andy Messinger over the right-field wall with two on in the fifth inning. That put the Chicks on top, 4 to 2, and there they stayed.

The Chicks had taken the first game, 6 to 4, with Brazil contributing a triple off Jimmy Blenheim in the sixth and another drive over the right-field wall off Paul Gregory in the seventh.

JUST A REPEAT.
Mr. Brazil, it is very vividly recalled, beat the Crackers in the first of the set Friday when he hit a home run over the right-field fence in the tenth inning.

As the result of the clean sweep of the three-game set the Chicks widened the gap between them and the third-place Crackers to four full games.

In the big parade with Brazil yesterday were Tex Jones, center fielder for the Chicks, and Johnny Cummings, a local boy making his debut as a Cracker in right field. Jones made four great catches, two in each game.

Cummings made a most auspicious debut, both in the field and at bat. He got a single and triple in the first game off Harry Kelly. He hit his single and was robbed of a triple in the second game, Jones flinging a great drive. He had eight putouts in the two games and had some hard chances. The youngster, who learned his elementary baseball at the local Christian Brothers College, should be a very prominent part of the Cracker machine from now on.

HAMMOND LET GO.
Cummings was put on the Cracker list Saturday in place of Hammond, who was released to the Henderson club of the Piedmont league.

Harry Kelly was the winner and Climax Blithen the loser in the first game, although Kelly was barely able to pull through the latter innings. The Crackers scored their two runs in the fourth inning of the second game off Walter Rock, but he was credited with the victory, as Brazil won the game before he pitched the last two innings, was officially nominated. The Crackers had made but three hits off Rock and got one off May. The Chicks hit Andy Messinger eight times.

Tom Angley, one-time Georgia Tech catcher, boosted his hitting average in the American association last week, from .407 to .422.

Angley may yet see service in the majors. His weakness has been in handling foul flies. Any man who can hit .422 through July is pretty sure to get another trial.

Over in the Eastern league Bob Parham is having his best season. After a fair one with Atlanta in 1929 and one not quite that good with Macon in 1930, he is sitting well up with the leaders. Parham is hitting .343 and is chasing Bruce Caldwell, former Yale football star, for the run-making and batting honors.

WALKUP'S COMEBACK.
Instead of wandering around in Georgia looking for the fountain of eternal youth, this fellow Ponce de Leon should have gone over into the dull, flat country of Alabama and peered around the section where Birmingham was to be built a few hundred years later.

Grandfather Ray Caldwell's success over there is already a matter of record. He was all through years ago only to bob up as a winner for Birmingham.

Jimmy Walkup's revival is all the more remarkable. He was a flop with Dallas and Beaumont. He won less than he lost.

This year has found him one of the Barons' pitching mainsprings. He has won 14 ball games.

If the Barons win, as it appears they will, Jimmy Walkup will go back to Texas to pitch in the Dixie series.

And what a great laugh the former Texas leaguer will have. Jimmy Walkup can sit right down in the dug-out and laugh and laugh and laugh.

What is it in the air or the water over at Birmingham? It always smells smoky. Maybe Cousin Zippo Newman knows the answer. He could peddle whatever it is for important money.

BREAK of the DAY

By Ralph McGill

And is Paul Revere's face red? My, my, yes! Vernon (Catfish) Smith has just completed a journey on horseback from Chattanooga, Tenn.-O-See to Athens, Ga.-Ga.

The Georgia football star rode into Athens at the head of a cavalcade composed of Jimmy McIntyre and Alec Gaines, Georgia polo players, and Moon Mullins, an infantryman.

They left Fort Oglethorpe, just outside Chattanooga, Friday morning. And arrived Sunday at dusk.

That's good riding. Catfish was not inspired by a reading of the story of Paul Revere. That story has been pretty well debunked anyhow. It seems there was something phoney about it.

A number of the polo ponies which the military outfit at Georgia owns, were at Fort Oglethorpe, just outside Chattanooga, for the recent encampment.

They had to be got home. Catfish Smith and two other young men offered to ride ponies home.

If Hughey Henry, the Kansas City announcer were here he'd say, "It's about 100 miles as the crow flies, about 115 as the horse flies."

Anyhow, it's quite a ride. Only a college boy would have thought of it.

There is no telling which route Colonel Catfish Smith and his troop of cavalry took. They might have ridden right through Atlanta for all one knows. A check-up at the police department by the paper's own sleuth, Mr. T. K. Jones, showed that no permits for a parade were issued. The boys must have taken an over-land route, so to speak.

It would be a dull summer without the boys.

HOME-BRED PLAYERS STAR.
Averages of the various baseball leagues about the nation reveal that Atlanta baseball players are doing excellently well.

Joyner White, College Park boy, is one of the big noises in the Texas league.

White is leading the Texas league in triples, runs and stolen bases. He has scored 77 runs in 102 games, has stolen 36 of those satchels and has hammered out 13 triples.

White is a product of the now-defunct Georgia-Alabama league. He started with Carrollton and went from there to Evansville in the Three-I circuit. He graduated from there to the Lone Star league.

Tom Angley, one-time Georgia Tech catcher, boosted his hitting average in the American association last week, from .407 to .422.

Angley may yet see service in the majors. His weakness has been in handling foul flies. Any man who can hit .422 through July is pretty sure to get another trial.

Over in the Eastern league Bob Parham is having his best season. After a fair one with Atlanta in 1929 and one not quite that good with Macon in 1930, he is sitting well up with the leaders. Parham is hitting .343 and is chasing Bruce Caldwell, former Yale football star, for the run-making and batting honors.

WALKUP'S COMEBACK.
Instead of wandering around in Georgia looking for the fountain of eternal youth, this fellow Ponce de Leon should have gone over into the dull, flat country of Alabama and peered around the section where Birmingham was to be built a few hundred years later.

Grandfather Ray Caldwell's success over there is already a matter of record. He was all through years ago only to bob up as a winner for Birmingham.

Jimmy Walkup's revival is all the more remarkable. He was a flop with Dallas and Beaumont. He won less than he lost.

This year has found him one of the Barons' pitching mainsprings. He has won 14 ball games.

If the Barons win, as it appears they will, Jimmy Walkup will go back to Texas to pitch in the Dixie series.

And what a great laugh the former Texas leaguer will have. Jimmy Walkup can sit right down in the dug-out and laugh and laugh and laugh.

What is it in the air or the water over at Birmingham? It always smells smoky. Maybe Cousin Zippo Newman knows the answer. He could peddle whatever it is for important money.

BOYS ARE READY FOR TITLE MEET AT GAINESVILLE

Robins, Barons Primed for Quest of Legion Sandlot Crown.

Both of them vastly confident. Greater Atlanta's two entries in the state sandlot baseball tournament in Gainesville for all set for the opening games tomorrow morning.

Those South Side Robins, from East Point, champions of the city of Atlanta, will make the trip to Gainesville this afternoon in automobiles, led by their manager, Frank (Red) Cooper.

Those Robins had a pep meeting at their manager's house last night and were issued uniforms, which they had received in a bunch from Major Trammell Scott Saturday. Those Robins exude confidence from every pore. If you stay around them a few minutes you can't help thinking they are going to win some ball games in Gainesville.

The DeKalb Barons, from Decatur, will go to Gainesville by automobile early tomorrow morning, arriving on the spot in time for the first games beginning at 10 o'clock. The Barons won the tourney last year, and they believe they can do it again.

Drawings for the tourney, in which 14 teams will play, will be made tonight in Gainesville, with the managers of all teams present. Seven games will be played tomorrow, four in the morning and three in the afternoon.

Quarter-finals and semi-finals will be played Wednesday, and the final game is slated for Thursday afternoon.

Dick Butler, coach of the Barons and manager in the division of O. S. Amers, who is at a C. M. T. C. camp and will be unable to see his team play, will go to Gainesville today and be present for the drawings tonight.

The 15 players who will make the trip from Decatur tomorrow to defend their title are: Edwin (Tid-Bit) Everett, left field; Albin (Fuzzy) Woodruff, second base; John (Jorie) Rainey, shortstop; Lee Richards, right field; Horace (Lefty) Britt, center field; Haywood Suggs, third base; Carroll Thomas, catcher; Herman Caruth, pitcher; Charlie (Wrong Arm) Burge, pitcher; Larry Gilbert, pitcher; Bud Johnson, pitcher; Julius Lennard, pitcher (Pee-Wee) Johnson, and Gene Barnes, utility.

Little Ben Burges, who accompanied the team to the regional tourney in Florida last summer, will again be with the Barons. Six of the players were members of last year's state championship squad. They are Woodruff, Rainey, Burgess, Johnson, Lennard and Johnson. Hugh Burgess, Legion athletic director in Decatur, and a number of other supporters will accompany the team to Gainesville.

The Barons seem to be of just about the same strength as last year, certainly not any weaker. They will be mighty hard to eliminate. In a three-day tourney, the Barons, Legion team from LaGrange, a strong club, by a one-sided score.

Those Robins, who will represent Atlanta in the division of O. S. Amers, who is at a C. M. T. C. camp and will be unable to see his team play, will go to Gainesville today and be present for the drawings tonight.

The 14 Robins players making the trip are: Lewis Quinn, third base; catcher; left field; Albin (Fuzzy) Woodruff, second base; Ray Clonts, catcher; Joe Horsch, shortstop; Lynn Hembree, first base; Leon Wallace, right field and pitcher; Raymond Cornett, center field; Carl Towns, pitcher; Lloyd Camp, pitcher; Brownie Brown, first base; Charles Redick, right field and pitcher; Ralph Giles and Wayne Melton, utility.

The barby is Ernest Castellanos, from Cuba, a good-luck piece, who talks rapidly in Spanish and scares the opponents. The manager is the aforementioned "Red" Cooper.

Besides the Barons and Robins, teams from Marietta, Gainesville, Griffin, Macon, LaGrange, Brunswick, Albany, Cedartown, Athens, Moultrie, Rome and Americus are entered in the tourney.

FRENCH STARS BEAT ENGLAND TO RETAIN CUP

Cochet Beats Perry for Winning Margin; Austin Is Victor.

AUTEUIL, France, July 26.—(AP) In a last-minute blaze of glory, France today won the Davis cup for the fifth consecutive year, beating back a determined bid by Great Britain in the challenge round, these matches to two, to assert once more her world tennis superiority.

It was the tennis ability of little Henri Cochet which kept the cup from crossing the English channel. In the first of the final two singles matches, Henri W. (Bunny) Austin, of Britain, had whipped the fading Basque veteran, Jean Borotra, 7-5, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, and brought the series count to 2-1. That left the issue squarely up to Cochet.

UP TO EXPECTATIONS.
Far off his usual form in his two previous cup matches and beaten earlier in the season by two lesser players, Cochet did what 10,000 excited tennis fans expected of him—beat the big Briton, Frederick J. Perry in the deciding match, 6-4, 1-6, 9-7, 6-3.

France thus for the fourth successive year successfully defended the cup it won from the United States at Germantown in 1927.

The Cochet-Perry match was an excellent finishing touch for the world's hard court team classic. A crowd filled Roland Garros stadium to see Perry battle the world's No. 1 player. Lines formed before the gate to the stadium as early as 8 o'clock this morning, some fans standing there for two hours and a half before reaching the ticket window. Several thousand disappointed tennis followers were turned away.

ONLY SHADOW.
Borotra again today was only a shadow of the man who used to fight "Big Bill" Tilden. At the start it seemed the Basque had learned something from his defeat by Perry Friday and was going to play a less strenuous game in order to conserve his strength. But before the second game of the opening set was over it was evident that the Frenchman still was fatigued from the pounding Perry gave him. Austin had but to return a reasonable number of balls and the match was his.

The twice caused a halt to be called, being falling soon after Austin served the first ball. Before the afternoon had ended, it had made the court slippery.

With the sun at 2 a. m., young Perry alighted on the enclosed square unimpaired of the load on his shoulders.

PERRY ADDS COLOR.
The Briton, scored a labor member of parliament, had an attack of "temperament." He made a guitar out of his racket and often turned upon the audience to admonish someone for breathing—but he never hesitated to run into the dangerous Cochet, often forcing the French star to err.

In the three sets Cochet won, Perry forced the issue continually, but the champion still was champion.

The fine rain turned into large-size drops to greet the two players who had been on their feet for an hour to preserve their footing. The match was halted for half an hour in the sixth game of the second set, as the rain fell heavily.

In the third set, Perry passed Cochet at the net, but he was not to be so easily deceived. He had found his touch each time his back was against the wall.

In the last and exciting fourth set, Cochet poured out his strength, and he was not to be so easily deceived. He had found his touch each time his back was against the wall.

Cochet gained a 5-3 lead in the fourth set but Perry rallied for a 20-15 advantage in the ninth game. Cochet worked it to 20-15 and, after a volley, reached 40-30 as another downpour began. Cochet's winning point for game, set, match and series came when Perry overhit the ball.

Meet Champion Reese

Billy Reese, lanky youngster, won Atlanta's city tennis championship Sunday afternoon by trouncing Jack Simpson in straight sets in the finals of the tournament played on the Georgia Tech courts. Reese beat the veteran at 6-4, 6-1, 6-2, to take the crown held last year by Harry Gault.

VETERAN BOWS IN THREE SETS ON TECH COURT

Youngster Wins, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2; Reese, Courts Take Doubles Title.

Reese's service was his main weapon in beating off the veteran Simpson. After being at 0-40 in the first game, Reese came back with three successive service aces and then pulled the game out from under him. He continued to play his strong, good service in the third game, only to have Simpson break it in the fifth. It was the last time Simpson ever cracked through.

In the second set Reese continued his spectacular play and won two games before losing a long-drawn-out game. He came back strong to win four successive games and then won the set, 6-1.

Three games in the third set were annexed in succession, giving Reese seven successive games in which Simpson secured only six points. INSTALLMENT XIV.

Lowndes Jennings seemed to understand. There was something knightly and glamorous about him. Sam Winstead would look a girl in the eye and blurt out her not to mind, to buck up and be a sport. He couldn't understand that having to run a roadside shack might work hardship to a nice girl's feelings. He had no sympathy to offer her for having to work for her living—he thought it a fine thing that she could and did do it. His idea was that one should play the game with zest. That was his great thing: He a sport! He didn't, for instance, think it noble of her to have opened the Shack—he thought it expedient and sensible, and he wanted her to make money on it. There was Sam Winstead for you!

But Lowndes Jennings! He had a way of slowly turning his head and looking down at a girl out of long gray eyes heavily lashed with black eyes "put in with a smutty finger"—a fascinating trick of manner that never failed to disturb one. He did most things without effort, and he did them with indolent grace, with lazy ease. One understood that he was not wealthy, but he managed to convey the impression of wealth, of means. Everybody said he was a charming fellow. What most people didn't know was that he was ambitious, or what his ambition was. Sally Rutherford appealed to his fastidiousness. Her prettiness, her pride, her courage, a something fiery and direct that set her apart from others, pleased him dangerously. Had things been different, had she still been the colony's heiress, Lowndes would have thanked the gods that he could have obeyed the impulses of his heart. But—Oleigh as good as lost, the Rutherford fortune wiped out as with a sponge, old Mrs. Rutherford a helpless invalid, and nothing whatever in sight but a roadside stand—that made things altogether something else. He managed with difficulty to keep up appearances—in fact, how Lowndes Jennings managed at all to keep up such an appearance puzzled some of his friends. True, he received invitations to many house parties; he had had invitations from visiting sportsmen to accompany them on suching in the woods, and his companionship agreeable, and his skill with cards exciting.

Sally Rutherford was in vogue just then, for her venture won sympathy and admiration, all the more so as it appeared to be succeeding. Lowndes saw no reason why he shouldn't see a good deal of the girl who had so intrigued him more than any girl he knew. Sometimes he came with other gay young people, but more often he came alone. All the winter he had his way to the Shack, and his smart roadster was inconspicuously parked just inside Oakleigh gates. Sometimes, when he was asked for a dance, he liked to have his dinner at Sally's seated at one of the small tables between two high-backed settees which shut the diners off.

"Come and have your dinner with me," he would coax the girl. "Moses can serve us, and at the same time keep an eye on the shop." When she sat opposite him, in her simple black frock which showed the creamy softness of her throat, he gave her the full benefit of that practiced sideways and downward glance which told her without words just how dear and lovely he thought her. He so thoroughly enjoyed the fried chicken that Sally couldn't help enjoying his enjoyment. She could not but be happy. Sometimes, when he was due at some dinner party, the smart roadster would come and carry her off for a swift run along the Carolina roads when the winter dusk was just musing into darkness. As a rule neither of them had much to say; they were content to be together, conscious of the ghost shaking nearness. Once, after a peculiarly trying day, when she was almost hysterically tired, he took her for such a ride. "Very tired, Small?" he asked tenderly, as they drove off. His voice was a caress. "Very tired," she admitted tremulously. She had tight rears. "Been a bad day?" O, dear little "Sometimes I wish so myself," said she. The tears stole down her cheeks and trickled, cold and salty, across her lips.

Without a word he put his arm around her shoulders and drew her head close to his own shoulder.

"Dear little girl! Precious little Sally," he pressed her closer. "Sally, Sally, Sally!" Because he was so young, so sad, so tired, and couldn't help loving him, she leaned against him. She was happy and unhappy, bewildered and glorified. Out of all the terrible and cruel things that had happened to her, she thought dazedly, had come this beautiful joy! She knew she loved him. As trustfully as a child she leaned her head against his arm. There was no need for words. . . . Lowndes understood.

Lowndes understood only too well that, unluckily, he had fallen in love with Sally Rutherford, and she with him, and that it was altogether mad and impossible. Understanding this thoroughly, he kissed Sally.

To do him justice, he really cared for her. If things had been different he would have been mad over her. But when you are a well born, penniless, ambitious young man, a social favorite, with expensive tastes, and you have appearances to keep up, and your assets are your good looks, a small brokerage business, and facile fingers for cards—though you aren't always lucky—how are you to manage and what are you to do when you fall headlong in love with a girl as hand-dipped as you are yourself, and in return she loves you? Lowndes knew he was behaving like a fool instead of the cautious young man he usually was. But he loved her, she was close to him, she loved him, she was utterly kissable. Lowndes held her close and kissed her, and Sally's innocent, passionate mouth kissed him back.

"When did you know, Lowndes?" she wondered.

"Darling, from the first moment I saw you. Though I didn't know it was going to be . . . so hard as this."

"So hard?" she wondered.

"How should I? I didn't know I could love a girl as I love you, Sally."

"And I didn't dream a girl could love a man as terribly as I love you, Lowndes."

"And we have to wait!" he lamented.

"Oh, yes, Lowndes. It hasn't been quite a year—it wouldn't be right," she said, misunderstanding him. "But I can't help being grateful, dear. I thought everything was finished—and all the time God was sending you straight toward me! Wasn't it wonderful?"

"You are wonderful, Sally."

"When I think that you are in the same world as I am, that you love me, I am so humble and so grateful—Oh, I wish grandpa could know, Lowndes."

"I wish he could, darling, Sally, did you know I'm poor?" That I really haven't a penny!"

"No, I think we are very rich, Lowndes."

"Rich in love, sweetheart."

"It is our love. Let us keep it to ourselves. A little while, Lowndes, shall we?" she asked wistfully.

"I couldn't help falling in love with you, Lowndes, could I? I'd have to fall in love with you anywhere, any time I saw you. You are a dreadfully easy person to fall in love with."

"I know I'm a dreadfully easy person to fall in love with," said he fondly. The time being propitious, he kissed her again. And again.

"Are we engaged, Lowndes?"

"You said you didn't wish to be formally, and let everybody know. Your wishes are my law. I am content to know you belong to me."

"With all my heart and soul," said she, sweetly. She took his gloved hand and held it to her young breast.

"Sally Rutherford, belong to you, Lowndes, forever and ever, world without end, until you yourself make me go," said she.

"I wish to God I could marry you right now!" said he truthfully. For she was loving and lovely and he was a spoiled young man.

"The Arrival of Kitty" is one of those rare and really funny plays which is always a success. It has a professional record of over 5,000 performances, and since its release to amateurs it has become among the most successful recent plays, with a record of over 1,500 performances and an increasing number of productions each year. Believing that a truly fine amateur production will be duly appreciated, the Woman's Club is going to a greater expense and trouble than is usual, to make this one "Future Beaux and Belles of College Park" will be an added attraction consisting of members of the younger social contingent. Those appearing in the cast are: Misses Virginia Oliver, Mary Belle Dinwiddie, Margaret Miller, Sarah Sheppard, Bert Dorsey, Frank Baskin, Stough Beers, Wilbur Rattarree and Sam Miller.

This entire production is under the direction of Sam Miller, who is well known in local dramatic circles as the newly-appointed director for the Oglethorpe University Players' Club.

At Nakanawa Camps.

MARYLAND, Penn., July 26.—With the completion of the first three weeks of the season, every day at the Nakanawa camps becomes more interesting. Such events as the annual pageant to be presented this year by the Valkyries and the banquet to be given by the Amazons are not far in the future. The theme of the pageant is the death of Balder. The stage settings will be made by the art classes. Many of the old Norse legends closely connected with the story of Balder will be told in the pageant.

The annual senior stag dance given by the honorary organization to which Emily Winship, Elizabeth Mitchell, Frances Woolford and Kathryn Lynch belong, was given July 18. The terrace was decorated as the stage lodge with attractive lighting effects, and the stage formed a double revolving line. The hosts were dressed alike in white trousers and blue shirts. Clever favors, lanterns and confetti were features of the dance.

In the weekly dining meet, Elizabeth Alexander and Mary Kneale, active parts. Kathryn Lynch, who is an outstanding camper from Atlanta, has been chosen as one of the members of the Valkyrie quartet, which alternates with the Amazon quartet in singing the goodnight song to the campers.

In the junior camp Jane Kelly, Betty Taylor and Julia Colquhoun have chosen baseball as their chief land sport. Ann Mitchell and Eloise Dickey are interested in football and take part in the weekly games. Marie Armstrong, Betty Taylor and Eloise Dickey were in the swimming meet July 18.

The junior campers held a stag dance last week also. Marjorie Armstrong, Julia Colquhoun and Ann Mitchell belong to the junior stag club. Their dance was given in the council house, which was decorated to represent the U. S. S. Nakanawa. The guests entered by a gangplank under the light of the cool ship's lanterns. Deck chairs and sport pillows were placed in the corners of the council house. The stage, dressed as sailor boxes, formed a letter "S" on the floor.

Vignettes.

A foolish girl named Betty has fallen in love with a medical student who has four more years to go before he begins to make a living. He is jealous and demands that while she is away from home she shall make no dates with other boys. He drinks and refuses to quit for her sake, (as if they ever did quit for love of a woman). He gambles, although he depends on his father for support. Betty says she will think of no man for any advice I will offer. I only advise her to read the list of vices the young man boasts and then ask herself what he has that will cancel them or even balance with them. Good looks won't do it. A bright mind won't do it. A winning personality won't do it. Love for her won't do it. Then where is she?

Joe is in love with a girl who is given to wild parties and a big time in a big way. When he lived in the town with her he could sort of keep an eye on her and see that her passion for a good time didn't take her too far. Now he has been transferred to a distant city and he is fearful that with his "watch-care" removed his girl may go too far. He is wondering if that sort of a girl will make him a good wife. He knows good and well she won't, but he wants me to say she will. Maybe when telephoning to a perfect man can marry a woman like this and be comfortable about her, but not now.

Blue Eyes is in love with a boy who has never told her that he loves her, although she knows he does. She doesn't know whether he forgets to speak of it or whether he is one of the silent type that never tells what he is thinking about. She is morally sure that this boy thinks she loves another, a relative of his. Her question is whether or not to let him continue to think that she is in love with him. She knows perfectly well that when her love becomes a matter of interest to that boy he will take the proper steps to find out where her love lies. But her impatience is going to betray her into playing her last card before it is necessary. Then she is automatically out of the love game.

Dimples has her troubles and they may seem small to an outsider but to Dimples they are of paramount importance. She recommends herself well. She is popular, good looking, and every boy who meets her goes wild about her. She has never seen a boy who couldn't go with her but she never has one to come back the second time.

Now everybody knows that it's no fun to have a different date every night and never to hold on to one long enough to have him get sentimental. Possibly a little more dignity, a little reserve, a little holding back, would be helpful to her. Boys like modesty too. A girl that rates too well with herself is likely to rate less well with the boys.

R. M. loves a wonderful girl and, better still, she loves him. She is popular. She likes to dance and although he is a good athlete he has never learned to dance. He goes and stands on the side lines while his girl glides over the floor with the other "Dugans" and he is getting sore about it. This young man is self-possessed and he never tells her how he suffers over the possibility of losing her. He is wondering if it would help matters if he learned to dance.

I think it would. When he is feeling particularly unhappy he could "cut in."

"Dumb Dora" wants to know if it pays to pet. All the boys who date her ask her to kiss them. They seem to expect it. She is undecided whether or not that means they are in love with her. She would like a full discussion of this question at the earliest possible time.

There is nothing here on which to base a discussion. The self evident fact is that Dumb Dora behaves in such a way that the boys feel at liberty to make impolite suggestions to her. Once it gets out that a girl is a petter she will find plenty of opportunity for something like that. She doesn't have to do anything like that to get a girl like another girl.

J. D. L. is in love with a young girl with whom he quarrels all the time. He argues that if they cannot get along before marriage they cannot get along after marriage. He wants to know if that supposition is correct, and being perfectly sure that he is right he asks a prescription for forgetting her.

That depends on what the young lady feels for him. If she returns his love, then he should have an agreement with her that they will call off their love affair for awhile, long enough for each of them to determine that they can be happy separated. If she doesn't love him then he is free to try his wings in another direction. He might begin with double dates until he develops some interest in another girl. Nothing will help a boy to forget a girl like another girl.

P. S. is young and inexperienced, so when a boy brings her a box of candy or a bunch of flowers she is embarrassed to know how to behave. She hesitates to open the candy because that might appear to be looking a gift horse in the face. She is afraid her thanks appear effusive.

The best rule in such a case is to be natural. The last thing that is instinctive without any feeling of consciousness. The natural thing to do with the box of candy is to open it and eat some of it with him. The proof of the appreciation lies in the enjoyment of the candy. You can't beat the old rule "be yourself" when you deal with the opposite sex. Boys don't like girls because they conform to certain methods of behavior. They like them for themselves. Consequently, a girl is safest when she behaves naturally.

Blue Eyes wants to know how to win the heart of a certain boy who is very handsome, very good and very smart. As if anyone could tell a girl how to win the heart of a boy! She can get it over to him that she admires him, and pique his interest but she mustn't feed him too much sweet or it willicken him. When she has intimated to him that he has caught her eye she must draw back and let him do the rest. If he doesn't follow suit, she is out of luck with that boy and she must look for another.

Dollar of 1925
Worth $1.13 Now.
Report Reveals

BY FRANK H. GERVAISE.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—There's a silver lining to the clouds of financial depression after all, statistics of the New York Public Service Institute and the United States Bureau of Labor today revealed.

One dollar will buy approximately 13 cents more than that same dollar bought in 1925.

The reason given is that with the depression came a drop in the cost of living. Labor department figures place the "cost of living index" for 1925 at 178. This has declined to 157.1, which means that, assuming a salary of $100,000,000,000 a year, he can purchase $113 worth of necessities and luxuries of life, or $13 worth more than he could have bought for the same sum in 1925, and the $100 probably represents also one or more pay increases during the six years that have elapsed.

Urban workers all down the line benefited by increases in public service salaries and the proportionate drop in the cost of living, the statistics set forth. While the number of unemployed has increased, forcing down commodity prices, salaries and wages in many lines have had their natural upward trend.

The man who drives spikes into railroad ties, earning approximately $5.50 per day, earns a sum which is worth as much as the grocery counter today as $6.24 was worth in 1925 when his wage scale was about $5.50 per day.

Herdon-Pangborn Hop Again Is Postponed

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—

After a conference with Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist, Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn tonight postponed indefinitely their takeoff on a projected globe-girdling flight.

Weather conditions were such, they said, that a start tomorrow morning, as previously announced, would be impossible.

Russell Boardman, who, with John Poland, hopes to fly to Istanbul, Turkey, for a new distance record, spent the day at Cape Cod, but was expected to return before tomorrow and resume preparations for a take-off during the week.

Burgess Children's Stories

THE COYOTES CHANGE THEIR MINDS.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

He's merely stubborn you will find. Who will not sometimes change his mind. —Speedfoot the Coyote.

It was not all playtime for the little kids of the Antelope band. Goodness, no! There were lessons every day. Some of these lessons were part of the play and some were the strict lessons to remember. But there were other lessons. Sometimes right in the middle of a game one or another of the mothers would give danger signals and each little Antelope would instantly drop where it was and there lie, looking as much as possible like a part of the surroundings until Mother gave the signal that all was well once more.

That danger signal was always given whenever a stranger, even if it man, horse, cow, coyote, anyone else big enough to be a source of possible danger, appeared in sight. This was to get the children out of sight before they were seen. As soon as the mothers were sure that the stranger was harmless the children were allowed to resume their play. So the days passed.

So the days passed and the kids ran races across the prairie.

ed and the kids ran races across the prairie and grew ever swifter of foot and stronger of lung and better prepared to run for their lives should there be need.

Now, Speedfoot the Coyote and Mrs. Speedfoot had never ceased to think of the baby Antelope dinner they had been so sure of when they had hunted for Kid Antelope and his twin sister. They knew that they had been completely fooled and outwitted by Mrs. Fleetfoot, but they hadn't given up hope that they would some day get even and have that delicious dinner.

"They are feeding right toward us. If they get near enough we ought to be able to separate one of those kids from the band, and once we do that, he is ours."

"They are big enough to run pretty fast," ventured Mrs. Speedfoot doubtfully.

"True enough," replied Speedfoot, "but they cannot keep it up for long, and we can. It would have been much easier to have found those kids before they could run, but we didn't. Now, if we are smart we should be able to get at least one of them. If we take them by surprise and dash right in among them they will scatter in all directions. Then we will pick out one and run it down."

Nearer and nearer came the band of Antelope, all unsuspecting, for it was very still and there was no wind to take the scent of the Coyotes to them. The kids were gambling and playing as usual. When they were as near as they were likely to come Speedfoot dashed straight for the band with Mrs. Speedfoot at his heels. The very thing happened that Speedfoot had counted on. There was a frightened scattering in all directions. One kid, who was separated from his mother and sister and did not see which way they ran, started off in blind terror straight away from the others.

The two Coyotes made straight for him. They paid no attention to the others. He was a good runner, was that little fellow, and for a while Speedfoot, fast as he was, could not gain. But he knew that the kid would tire shortly and he grinned as he ran. Then at the sound of his grating hoofs he glanced back. The kid's mother was coming at full speed. Speedfoot had expected this. He would keep her occupied while Mrs. Speedfoot ran down the kid. That was the advantage of hunting together.

Straight past Speedfoot dashed the frantic mother, dodging him as he leaped at her. Mrs. Speedfoot, almost caught: the kid when the angry mother was obliged to dodge. Speedfoot started for the kid while Mrs. Speedfoot occupied the mother's attention. But it was too late. Another angry mother had arrived and a third was coming, for by this time all the kids from the band were running.

Aburdly the Coyotes changed their minds. They didn't want young Antelope for dinner. They had an important engagement elsewhere, and they started to slip in to see the while two thoroughly angry Antelope chased them, and his mother comforted the trembling, panting little kid.

Advantage of Pre-emptive Overbids

Under the Approach Forcing System three bids in a major and four bids in a minor suit cover the range of hands, strong, aggressively and warranting an attempt for game (usually in that suit), but carrying too weak distributionally for an opening bid of two in a suit. A game bid tells partner that the hand has a powerful trump suit; in other words, distributional strength, but defensively it cannot be counted on. Obviously, most of the value of Pre-emptive bids will be lost unless they are made before adversaries have made an opening bid, although, in some cases, the opportunity may present itself to block valuable exchange of information after one adversary has bid. The intent to shut out opponents, preventing them from reaching the best declaration for their combined hands by Approach bidding methods, is apparent to the adversaries, but may leave them helpless, notwithstanding, especially if their strength is divided and the distribution of their hands normal.

Necessarily a hand warranting such an overbid must be bid, knowing that the penalty points, if doubled, will not exceed the value of an opposing game. In a major suit the hand should contain at least 7 playing-tricks, not vulnerable, and 8 vulnerable. In a minor suit, not vulnerable, the hand should contain 8 playing-tricks and one more vulnerable.

The Responding Hand, with no intervening bid, will only raise with a hand powerful in honor-tricks, having at least 4 supporting tricks, inviting a Slam. Should there be an intervening bid, either a Raise or Rebids with insufficient values is a defensive measure fraught with danger. Unless positive that opponents can score game, such a bid is unsound. More-over there is a possibility of forcing opponents into a successful Slam bid.

Recently, in a Chicago club, a Pre-emptive overbid resulted favorably for the Dealer.

1—South's hand is weak in defensive strength but strong if played at clubs.

2—East, with 3-1-2 honor-tricks, is afraid to count spade tricks and, because of unequal distribution, so does not double. He is unwilling to risk a bid of five spades because of possible spade length in North's hand.

The play of the hand was simple. South was fortunate in finding the heart Ace on the left of partner's King, and the Queen Knave of diamonds unprotected. Club nine was led by West, won by East and spade King returned. Declarer lost only the club Ace and heart Ace.

It is interesting to note that East could make four spades, and had the bidding progressed slowly would have bid five, taking a loss of 100 points or forcing South to bid six clubs for a similar penalty.

New York Seems Dry To Denver Visitor

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(UP)

A statement that he was in New York city two months without seeing a liquor sale, receiving an offer to sell liquor, or learning where liquor could be purchased there, was made today by Frank L. Ross, Denver gas and electric man, through the Anti-Saloon League.

Ross saw only one intoxicated person in the two months, he said. He said he has been up and down all of Broadway at various hours of the day and night, and also has visited resorts, parks and soft-drink places "described as speak-easies by casual observers."

FATHER, BABY KILLED

BY HIT AND RUN AUTO

LANCASTER, Pa., July 26.—(UP) Harry Frank, 50, and his 18-month-old daughter, Kathryn, whom he was pushing in a baby carriage along a road four miles north of here, were killed tonight when struck by an automobile.

Mrs. Frank and another daughter, Helen, 10, were injured.

Jerry Erb, who, according to police, was driving in the vicinity at the time and later returned to inquire about the accident, was arrested.

Two spades, what should North bid holding:

♠ A Q
♥ J 7 5
♦ A Q J 10 9 8 7

The Answer.
The correct bid on this hand is three spades.

It must be evident to North that the bid of two spades is more or less in the nature of a psychic bid; that is, an attempt to prevent a game or Slam bid by his opponents. The best way to expose this situation to his partner is by an overcall in opponent's suit which, after a bid by his partner, shows Slam possibilities, and also that he does not expect to lose any tricks in opponent's suit.

The only danger here is that the partner may assume that club support is indicated, but Third Hand can take out any further bid of clubs in diamonds. North should count on playing this hand in either five or six diamonds, depending on his partner's responses and on the extent of his own gambling instincts.

IMPERIAL BEDDING CO. GIVES QUICK SERVICE

Among the many mattress renovating plants located in Atlanta is the Imperial Bedding Company, of 442 Cain street, N. E. This firm is one of the best in the south, being housed in an especially large fireproof building that was built a few years ago for the special purpose.

This large mattress renovating company, through their latest equipment and fine organization of skilled mechanics have a capacity of 150 mattresses a day.

An old, lumpy mattress that is uncomfortable and soiled may be made into a felt, or an inner spring mattress. Yet, the cost is reasonable because the cotton felt belongs to the people that send them the mattress to be made over, and the cotton accounts for the principal cost of a mattress.

In making a spring felt mattress out of an old one this company begins the work like they would in renovating any kind of mattress, that is, they sterilize the old mattress by electric heat up to 200 degrees, then the cotton felt through a gun. They blow all the dust out of the new soft cotton, which leaves it clean and dust free, then it is run through a large felt machine.

From this point the spring felt mattress differs in the making of a felt mattress by the putting of six layers of cotton felt on the bottom, then a light steel spring that is about six inches high and then on top of this return six layers of cotton felt.

This means, then, that the same cotton that was in the old mattress in loose or lumpy form is now sterilized by extreme heat and made into inner compact felt layers and a very light steel wire spring placed in the middle and then any one of this firm's beautiful new coverings, or standard tickings, as selected by the customer, is put on. The mattress maker stitches through tickings, layers of felt on top springs and layers of felt on the bottom and tickings.

In this way everything is held in place for years and now a splendid long-lasting combination of cotton felt and flexible spring felt mattress and a good, soft, comfortable bed is assured to all that have their old mattresses made over in this latest way.

The Imperial Bedding Company has always been noted for its extra prompt service. They can call for any old mattress in the morning and return it looking as if it came from the big stores new before the day is over.

They render very helpful service to large boarding housekeepers, hotel men and managers of public or private institutions.

This enterprising mattress rebuilding company lately inaugurated a collective and delivery system embracing the entire state and their trucks may be seen in all parts of Georgia bringing old mattresses or delivering the made-over ones with their new and fancy tickings on them.

Over Supply, Holding Tactics Blamed for Wheat Situation

Grain Market Analyst Club Finds Other Theories Break Down Under Investigation.

CHICAGO, July 26.—(P)—The Grain Market Analyst Club, composed of leading grain statisticians and crop experts of the country, in a report tonight of its study of the world wheat situation blamed steadily increasing supplies for five years and efforts to withhold the surplus from the market for the present low prices.

The report says: "Unlikely most natural products, the use of wheat for human foods is practically uniform in quantity whether the original price be high or low. The capacity of the stomach for white bread is neither materially increased nor markedly decreased by the cost of the wheat that enters into the making of the bread. A surplus of production and a decline in price does not automatically increase the use of wheat by multiplying the human appetite. If the price is low enough it brings a substitution demand for use as animal feed, but for practical purposes this character of demand is of small value as a price stimulant because it represents a high cost human food in competition with low cost animal feeds."

"There is no purpose in yearly wheat production except for human food, and a surplus beyond human requirements is a waste of resources."

Blair said New York accounts for practically one-fifth of all rail traffic in fresh fruits and vegetables, shipping her own products to 68 terminal markets and drawing shipments from 38 states. A 15 per cent rate increase, he said, would restrict New York to nearby markets.

Freight rates on fruits and vegetables, Blair said, in 1930 amounted to 54.91 per cent of the money paid by the consumer. This year, he said, constituted only 1.28 per cent of total railroad tonnage but provided 7.11 per cent of total freight revenues. The proposed 15 per cent rate increase, he said, would add $400,000,000 to the fruit and vegetable freight bill, or one-tenth of the $4,000,000,000 additional cost to the consumer.

Blair predicted such rates would drive the fruit and vegetable traffic to trucks and actually decrease railroad earnings.

He explained that he appealed to Roosevelt for assistance because:

"Your several state agencies are so well equipped to present the facts, and they have such an authoritative standing throughout the country that any representation made by them undoubtedly would have great weight with the interstate commerce commission."

The attempt to bring Roosevelt into the rate controversy taken on added weight because of the importance of New York state's laws setting earnings as a standard of eligibility of railroad securities for insurance companies and banks. When the carriers presented their case before the interstate commerce commission this year will probably drop below the approved figure and that the eligibility of something like $5,000,000,000 in bonds may be affected.

MIAMI TO CELEBRATE 35TH ANNIVERSARY

MIAMI, Fla., July 26.—(P)—Plans have been completed for a three-day celebration here because of the importance of New York state's laws setting earnings as a standard of eligibility of railroad securities for insurance companies and banks. When the carriers presented their case before the interstate commerce commission this year will probably drop below the approved figure and that the eligibility of something like $5,000,000,000 in bonds may be affected.

The celebration will be held in conjunction with an industrial convention sponsored by the Greater Miami Manufacturers' Association in Bay Front park. Entertainment features include a band concert in the afternoon and evening with vaudeville acts and street dancing in the park.

One of the high spots of the celebration will be the performance by the Elks boys' band of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Astronomers Diagnose Moon's 'Indisposition'

LONDON, July 26.—(UP)—British astronomers have turned celestial physicians in an effort to diagnose the case.

Although song writers say it looks like the same old moon, the astronomers point out that it has slowed up seven-tenths of a mile in relation to its distance ahead of the world in the last two years.

Sir Fred Dyson, the astronomer royal, said today that he believes the moon will be six miles ahead of the time tables this year, whereas last year it was 6.3 miles ahead.

NEW YORK FLIGHT PLANNED BY CUBANS

HAVANA, July 26.—(P)—Reports from army aviation headquarters today said a flight to New York and return was being contemplated by Cuban army fliers.

Plans are still tentative, according to the reports.

BONDS YIELD GROUND IN LISTLESS TRADING

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(P)—The bond market appeared to be without definite trend most of last week but a comparison of the closing price with those of the previous week indicated a gradual irregular decline in domestic corporate issues.

Foreign obligations closed lower, several with net losses of several points. The closing average for 30 representative domestic bonds consisting of 10 issues each of industrial, railroad and public utility companies was 94.9, compared with 95.5 a week earlier. Most of the decline resulted from the action of rail issues whose average was 99.0 against 100.2 at the close of the previous week. The explanation of the action of this latter group was easy to find in the unsatisfactory June earnings reports of the carriers.

Continuing unsettlement in foreign financial affairs was reflected in the issues of various nations. The German obligations received more attention than other foreign issues. The 5 1/2 and 7 1/2 of the national government closed within short range of the 1931 low levels and a number of 6 and 6 1/2 percent issues reached new bottom prices on Saturday. Nevertheless the trading in this group was much less nervous than during the preceding week, although the volume of both periods was sizable in most of them.

The publication Saturday morning of the report of Sir Otto Niemeyer on investigation of Brazilian financial affairs was an event which had been awaited for some time, but it produced little immediate effect, as the issues of that nation then were quieted further by the volume of Brazilian bonds moved lower for the week as a whole with other foreign issues.

The bond market, like other economic media, moved in cycles. Surely the public interest in it is restricted now, the demand will increase as confidence in business grows. The demand for ultra high-grade issues is and has been good, as recovery develops the demand for less desirable issues may be expected to grow. At least the market has followed the course of the past and there is no reason to expect that it will not do likewise again. It is another matter, however, to say just when the long-awaited change will occur.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON RECESSES DURING WEEK

NEW ORLEANS, July 26.—(P)—Comparative quiet featured trading in the cotton market during the past week. Prices, however, fluctuated within fairly broad ranges, the spread being 77 to 78 points between the high and low levels and the end of the period showed a net decline for the week of 40 to 41 points or just above $2 a bale.

The dominating influences have included the London financial conference, the weather developments and the restraining effect of the near prospect of the annual statistics. Something of a bull weevil scare appeared to be figuring in the calculations of traders near the end of the period, based upon reports of greater weevil activity in south Texas and in portions of Louisiana and Mississippi as well as in South Carolina.

In the first days of the week the market developed an advancing tendency due to the financial conference in London which was expected to solve the European financial troubles. This optimism led to recoveries in stock which favorably influenced the commodity markets, including cotton. This early advance carried prices up 20 points.

The advancing tendency was checked on Wednesday by the issue of a favorable weekly weather and crop summary. This caused a liquidation by recent buyers and the decline was accelerated by a drop in stocks and weakness in the foreign markets coupled with a decline in sterling and other forms of foreign exchange. The downward trend of values kept up practically to the close of the week, causing values to ease off 77 to 78 points from the weekly high.

Women's Working Hours In Southern States Scored

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(UP)—Low wages and long hours have become the lot of many women workers in 10 southern states as the result of the industrial awakening of the south, Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau of the labor department, said in a bulletin issued by the department today.

The industrial activity of women in six of the states studied by Miss Anderson was chiefly centered in the textile industry, while in Kentucky, Florida and Virginia, cigar and tobacco factories employed the majority.

Many tenant farmers in the south, who seldom handle more than $250 in cash during a year, are frequently lured to factory towns by seemingly high wages, the bulletin asserts. Once there, however, they find that the cost of living more than takes up the spread in cash income.

Although many mill owners and managers in the south are "showing wise judgment in the direction of improved wages, hours, and working conditions," Miss Anderson found that legislative protection for workers is lacking.

"In two of the 10 states," she said, "no labor laws have been enacted and only three states restrict weekly hours in industry to less than 60."

"That such hours as 60 or 55 (a week) should not exist, especially for women workers with their multitudinous home duties, is so obvious as hardly to need stating."

Patriotism in Styles Introduced by Paris

PARIS, July 26.—(UP)—The style cars of Paris have taken advantage of the present international political complications to introduce "patriotism" into the wardrobe.

The larger dressmaking houses call the new costumes "fashion flags." They are red, white and blue ensembles which offer a variety of arrangement. The predominating colors are those of France and the United States.

ONEIDA, Tenn., July 26.—(AP)—Jack Morris, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morris of Oneida, was shot and killed about noon today by his playmate, Ora Lee Thompson, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ora Thompson, of Oneida.

Swimmer Drowned.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 26.—(AP)—James Dykes, 20, employee of the Louisville and Nashville railroad in Knoxville, was drowned in the Holston river, near the city, today, while in bathing with a party of friends.

A rabbit show, sponsored by the Greater Atlanta Rabbit Breeders' Association, will be held today at Lakewood park. The exhibit is called a "table show." I. W. Taylor, of Hapeville, will judge the prize-seeking entries.

Baby health centers for the week will be as follows: Monday, F. J. Stanton school; Tuesday, Whiteford school. Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, will be in charge.

Speech Arts Club, of the Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression, will meet at 6 o'clock Tuesday night at the school studio.

A trachea clinic will be held at Eastman on Tuesday and 12 children are scheduled to undergo operations at that time, according to the health department. Dr. B. H. Minchew, of Waycross, will be in charge.

Unless $1,500,000 is made available for the teachers of the public schools, according to E. R. Sweet, acting president of the board of education, teachers will have to work unpaid after September 1 or the schools will have to close. A meeting is planned for 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night between a county liaison group and members of the DeKalb and Fulton county delegations in the general assembly in an effort to arrive at a solution.

Another reported burglary was that of the Chain Oil Company station at Connelly and East Fair streets, $11 being taken from the telephone pay station there.

APACHES RELEASED IN SLAYING OF GIRL

WHITE RIVER APACHE RESERVATION, Ariz., July 26.—(AP)—Seven Apache Indians and a white man, W. R. Warner, 40-year-old painter, have been released by authorities investigating the mysterious death of Henrietta Schermer, 23-year-old anthropology student of Columbia University, New York.

Officers said today they have no real clue to the fatal stabbing and probable attack by several men upon the girl, who had been here a month studying the life and speech of the Indians. The body was found Friday in a ravine near Fort Apache.

Three days of investigation have elicited only mournful shaking of Apache heads, and a story from Warner which officers said accounted for his movements. He was held for questioning after discovery of a reference to him in an unfinished letter from Miss Schermer to a sister in New York.

The letter related Warner once saved Miss Schermer from unwelcome attentions of an unnamed Apache whom she feared.

Warner told officers he had taken the girl riding in his automobile several times.

Among the seven Indian suspects, authorities believed they had apprehended the Apache of whom Miss Schermer had expressed fear in her letter. They were not able to identify him, however.

Sheriff L. B. Divilbiss, of Navajo county, indicated that further investigation will be made of the sparse population of the reservation territory.

2 Killed in Wreck.
LENOIR CITY, Tenn., July 26.—(AP)—Clifford Duff, 25, and Mrs. Minnie Moss Everett, 21, were dead today as the result of an automobile accident on a lonely road near Rockwood, where their bodies lay for hours in the wreckage before being discovered.

Florida Town Unable To Pay Its Employees

BOYNTON, Fla., July 26.—(AP) Employees of the town of Boynton will go to work tomorrow with no money in the treasury for salaries. Policemen, firemen; street department and city hall employees are all in the same boat, but they probably will go to work just the same.

Their salaries were cut off yesterday when Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth, at West Palm Beach, handed down a temporary restraining order under which nearly $4,000, now in the treasury, must be used only on the bonded debt of the town.

The order also provides that all future collection of taxes, due and unpaid from 1925 to 1930, inclusive, must be prorated between operating expenses and the sinking fund.

AVOID "ASH-TRAY" BREATH

SMOKE PURE-TOBACCO OLD GOLDS

Laboratory tests show why OLD GOLDS do not taint the breath and clothing with a clinging and unpleasant odor.

The cool, blue-white smoke of an OLD GOLD contains no greasy, artificial flavors that scent up the room and person.

For OLD GOLD is a Nature-flavored cigarette. Made of pure, clean, sun-ripened tobacco... so mellow and fragrant it needs no flavor "disguises."

"Keep Kissable with OLD GOLDS" is not a mere claim. It is a real and pleasant fact, as millions of OLD GOLD smokers know. If you'll truly try them, you'll know so, too.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

CELLOPHANE SEALED

KEEP KISSABLE... NO "ARTIFICIAL FLAVORS" TO TAINT THE BREATH... OR STAIN THE TEETH
